PROFILE

I work on the half of the relationship that starts after the sale — where a customer either gets real value out of what they bought or quietly stops using it. Since 2022 I have advised businesses from startups to large enterprises as an independent consultant: sitting with the people accountable for a number, finding where the value is actually leaking, and saying plainly what to change. Inside a UK fintech I ran a 13-person support function, promoted from the frontline, where I authored the customer-facing knowledge base, owned escalations, and carried recurring customer problems back into the product. I also run Formula4You, a live platform where onboarding and the customer journey are mine to design and answer for.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Independent Consultant — Business Growth & Client Advisory

2022 — Present

Part-time, project-based engagements · Egypt

Four years of direct client work: engaged by founders and leadership teams to find where a business is quietly losing customers or money, and to say what to change. I read a buying experience as the customer does, tell a client where they are genuinely different from the competitor beside them, and say when nothing should be built at all. Selected engagement:

- Engaged as outside advisor to a mid-size e-commerce operator whose leadership had diagnosed a "customer service problem". Reviewed the business end to end — advertising, sales transcripts, cancellation reports, inventory, the fulfilment SOP, carrier reports and every team's KPIs — and presented a different diagnosis: five conflicting delivery promises across five functions, and three internal definitions of "Confirmed", none of which agreed.
- Rebuilt the order journey into unambiguous stages, each with a definition, an owning department, a normal duration, a next action and a named owner when it overran — so every stage of the customer's experience had someone accountable for it.
- Replaced ticket count as the health measure with cancellation-after-confirmation, delivery failure, repeat-purchase gaps and stage dwell time, surfacing customer churn signals that never produced a complaint. Introduced three-field problem recording — the customer's words, the actual cause, the originating stage.
- Designed a behaviour-triggered retention offer shown only to high-intent visitors at exit risk, with frequency controls and margin guardrails, in place of a site-wide discount that would have paid customers who had already decided to buy. Recommended holding acquisition spend where the purchase journey could not sustain it.

Client Support Team Leader

Sep 2025 — Jun 2026

Alpha Capital Group (UK) · Remote · fintech

Promoted after a year on the frontline to lead a 13-person function comprising 10 agents, 2 senior agents and 1 QA specialist, running day-to-day customer operations on Intercom, Discord and email for a high-volume customer base.

- Authored the customer-facing knowledge base and FAQ programme, prioritised by repeat-contact rate, handle time, escalation rate and complaint severity — the enablement layer that let customers resolve for themselves instead of contacting anyone.
- Carried recurring customer problems into the product. Specified an in-product withdrawal status timeline after establishing that the highest-volume contact driver was a visibility failure rather than a delay. Repeat contacts on that driver dropped clearly.
- Owned escalations end to end. Identified and drove the fix for a payment status-mapping defect in which the provider's "accepted for processing" acknowledgement was recorded as final settlement, so customers were told funds had arrived while still in flight. Assembled the incident evidence, coordinated Payments Operations, Engineering and Finance, and introduced an intermediate status, a monitoring alert and an incident playbook.
- Rebuilt the ticket taxonomy to separate the stated reason for contact from the cause found after investigation, plus journey stage and owning department — so reporting showed which part of the business was generating customer friction, not only how much.

- Managed, coached and reviewed the team, replacing script-adherence QA with decision-quality review: whether the agent reached correct information, explained it usably, named the next step and recorded the cause.
- Defined escalation paths, priority and response standards on financial impact, customers affected, time sensitivity and compliance risk rather than on contact channel. Partnered with sales, operations and product on the upstream causes of recurring contact rather than on reply speed.

Client Support Specialist

Sep 2024 – Sep 2025

Alpha Capital Group (UK) · Remote · fintech

Frontline Arabic-language support for a high-volume customer base. Earned Employee of the Month recognition and hundreds of verified five-star customer reviews, and mapped the recurring contact drivers that became the basis of the team-leadership role.

Founder — Business Growth, Customer Experience & Platform Operations

2025 – Present

Formula4You · Egypt · part-time venture · specialist commerce platform (live)

Identified a structural gap in Egypt's fragrance market and built the platform for it, owning the customer and supplier journeys end to end.

- Designed onboarding and the path to first order across supplier, merchant and buyer journeys — two steps, seven fields, five required — treating every additional field as a chance to lose someone who was willing.
- Defined the operating model across listing and subscription lifecycles, admin review, content quality, renewals and expired accounts — including what happens when a listing is wrong, what a buyer is owed, and who fixes it.

Social Media Moderator & Live Chat Support Specialist

2018 – Present

Freelance · Egypt · remote · alongside the roles above

Eight years of continuous frontline customer contact for online businesses — product questions, complaints, delivery issues, sales conversations, and community moderation at volume.
